

University of Victoria

Greek & Roman
Studies

Greek and Roman Studies 336: Democracy in the Ancient Mediterranean and Its Legacy

Spring 2025    TWF    1:30-2:20 p.m.    Professor Geoffrey Kron

GRS 336 explores the ideology, practice, and impact of democratic institutions in the ancient Mediterranean. The course examines the political systems of Classical and Hellenistic Greece, Carthage, and the Roman Republic, and considers the influence of ancient political systems upon theories of popular government in later history.

- study democratic political systems in the ancient Mediterranean
- explore current scholarly debates about ancient democracy
- consider the lasting legacy of ancient democracy

No prerequisites. One of GRS 100, GRS 101, GRS 102, GRS 331, or GRS 332 recommended.