Presented by the Latin American Studies Program

Dr. Yael Bitrán is a musicologist and historian of Latin America. She focuses her research on the contributions of nineteenth- and early twentieth-century women to the musical heritage of Mexico. Henrietta Yurchencho (1916-2007) was an American pioneer folklorist that produced some of the first recordings of traditional Indigenous music from little explored areas of Guatemala and Mexico. A Musical Odyssey documents Yurchenko's lifelong commitment to the preservation of this important heritage.
