

Lynne E. Young PhD

Professor Emeriti Nursing

Following two decades of a career in clinical nursing that included roles as leader and educator, I pursued an academic career. In 1994, I joined the University of Victoria as a sessional instructor, then assumed a tenure track position in 1997 at the School of Nursing. Concurrently, I was appointed as an affiliate faculty member for the UVic Centre on Aging. In the School of Nursing, I assumed several leadership roles including terms as: Associate Director Research and Scholarship (2006-2009), Associate Director Graduate Education (2010-2013), and Co-Director (and founder) of the Joanna Briggs Institute Affiliate Centre (2016-2018). I served on several university committees including: member of the University of Victoria Research Ethics Committee (2002-2009), member Search Committee, VP Research (2011-2012), and HSD Dean Search Committee (2014-2015). Regarding research I served as Co-PI for the University of Victoria site of the Canadian Longitudinal Study on Aging (2012-2017). Serving on University of Victoria Senate was not an option for me during my working years due to other commitments although I did aspire to contributing to the leadership of the university through the work of Senate. Now in retirement, serving as a Convocation Senator is possible for me, hence my bid for this position. The University of Victoria is highly regarded for offering a quality, esthetically pleasing, and inspirational defining moment for the graduates of the University of Victoria and their loved ones. If elected I will contribute to ensuring that the quality and appeal of this fine event is maintained.
