

Honorary Degree Nomination

Our vision is to be a university of choice for outstanding students, faculty and staff from British Columbia, Canada and the world. We aspire to be the Canadian university that best integrates outstanding scholarship, inspired teaching and real-life involvement. As members of a diverse and dynamic learning community, we challenge one another to become thoughtful, engaged citizens and leaders, prepared to contribute to the betterment of a rapidly changing global society.

In celebration of this vision, the University of Victoria confers degrees Honoris Causa each year to a select group of individuals who have an exceptional record of distinction and achievement. Honorees include world-renowned scholars and artists; celebrated and visionary public figures; prominent professional and community leaders; and philanthropists. A candidate for an honorary degree must attend a convocation ceremony to receive the degree in person, except in unusual circumstances and only at the discretion of Senate. Honorary Degrees are not awarded posthumously, nor are they generally awarded to persons holding political office or a current appointment at the University of Victoria.

REVIEW OF NOMINATIONS

Nominations are reviewed by the Senate Committee on Honorary Degrees and Other Forms of Recognition in accordance with the Terms of Reference of the committee. A nomination will not be placed before the committee until all components of the nomination package have been submitted.

The selection of candidates for receipt of honorary degrees is considered by Senate to be a delicate matter requiring the utmost care and confidentiality. The committee receives many names of possible candidates from various sources each year and tries to maintain a balance in the selection of candidates. Obviously, it is not possible to offer honorary degrees to all candidates who are nominated. Any recommendations for honorary degrees received by the committee are held in strict confidence from the time they are received.

Once a name has been put forward for a degree, the Senate Committee on Honorary Degrees and the Senate are unable to comment on what has transpired. Nominators are not informed of their deliberations. To avoid any potential embarrassment to candidates, nominators and the university, candidates are never informed that they are under consideration. Their selection by Senate is not revealed until a letter is written to ask if they are willing to accept an honorary degree.

When a candidate has been approved by Senate, has accepted the offering and has been scheduled for a convocation ceremony, the nominators and supporters of the candidate will be contacted and informed.

ALL HONORARY DEGREE NOMINATIONS ARE STRICTLY CONFIDENTIAL

* Potential nominees should never be aware they have been nominated or are under consideration. ****
